

of Representatives proud to be a part of this great country, but with this very simple message: I beg, let's show respect and pray that we will receive respect for those who serve and those who put their lives on the line such that some of them will suffer to have the words "in the line of duty" recalled as they make their transition, as their homegoing ceremonies are commemorated.

I truly believe that this country needs to reconcile. We need reconciliation. There are just too many things happening now that are signs of this need of reconciliation that we have not had the opportunity to perfect. And I have suggested to the President that he establish a Department of Reconciliation with a Secretary of Reconciliation. Just as we have a Department of Labor and a Secretary of Labor, to deal with labor issues, we need someone to deal with the need for our country to reconcile our differences.

I am not justifying anything that has happened because of past occurrences with reference to "in the line of duty." I am merely saying that there are so many of these ugly things happening that we ought to find reason to put in place a means by which we can have a discussion about them and properly educate people about all of the things that can make a difference in our lives as we try to adjust our lives for the things that have happened in the past. The past does impact the present as well as the future, and it is time for us to reconcile, Mr. President.

So Madam Speaker, I beg of Mr. President to give consideration to the establishment of a Department of Reconciliation. You would place on our agenda, long after you depart from the Presidency, the continuation of the need to bring this country closer together, to help us to understand each other better, to move forward with a greater desire and love for each other. I pray that we will do this, Mr. President.

And finally, I pray that I will never have to attend another in-the-line-of-duty ceremony. These things are related in this sense. There are people who believe that somehow the suffering that others have caused that have been inflicted upon people, somehow they are justified by taking the life of a person they do not know. I hope that we can prevent this from happening ever again. I know that it has happened, but I don't want to see it happen again. And I believe that we need to start this process of reconciliation. It will make a difference.

And I pray that we will never again have to go to these ceremonies where we all leave saddened by the loss of someone who was but only doing his or her job.

We need to resolve our differences in this country. There is no justification for what is happening.

Madam Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.
